

The Divine Contract

There is no other in this world given the right or the power to define who you are.

No one shall rob you of your value, nor shall any other determine your worth.

None shall steal your integrity, decide your character, or destroy your authenticity.

No other shall discredit your success, seize your potential
or dismantle your honor, and no one shall discourage your dreams, erase your spirit, or dissuade you from your truth.

None are given the power to diminish your love, shatter your confidence, efface your trust, or extinguish your passion.

No one shall lead you where you do not choose to go, nor shall anyone interrupt your unique relationship with your Self or your God.

Your free will is your right of empowerment.
You, ...and only you, have the intrinsic design and the divine authority to walk beyond anything or anyone who does not enhance, encourage, or inspire your greatness.

No other is permitted to confiscate your happiness and replace it with guilt or fear.
You have not traveled this great distance to be anything less than your own magnificence, and you are entitled to extraordinary joy.
Your entitlement is your most powerful virtue.

Be this virtue.

There is no need to buy a ticket when you are the train.

Heather K. O'Hara

from

AXIS, The Song in the Center of the Soul